

Custom Wedding Rings

Every wedding is unique. No body wants a copy-cat wedding, nor one that lacks the individual tastes of the new couple. A very special personalised touch to any wedding, is to commission custom wedding rings for you and your new spouse to exchange.

Designing custom wedding rings allows each of you to express your individual flair and preference. There is a misconception that wedding rings need to match, but marriage symbolizes the union of two lives into one, without having to give up your individuality. Your custom wedding rings can be made to your taste and still represent the deeper meaning of commitment between you and your partner.

If you are a bit daunted by the task of designing your own custom wedding ring, have a look at existing rings on display at various jewellers for inspiration. Or alternatively, give a reputable jeweller a description or idea of what you want, and they will be able to draw out a few ideas, until you find the one that you fall in love with. Fortunately most retail jewellery store offer a design service for custom wedding rings. The rings can be made from any material, and you will be able to have the final say in the appearance of the finished product.

Many jewelers are excited and inspired by designing custom wedding rings which can be a real bonus. Some even offer free cleaning services for a period of time if you make use of their services. So shop around for a jeweler that you are happy with, and one that offers you the best deals and service. Bear in mind, that this may not be restricted to within your local town. Many online outlets offer custom wedding rings. However if making use of an online designer, it is necessary to ask them the amount of insurance you will want to have on your rings when they are sent to you, especially through the mail. Also, ask the company or designer to save a picture or record of your custom wedding rings, should you need to replace them at a later date.

Custom wedding rings also offer the benefit of choice - for practical reasons. If you have a skin reaction to certain metal types, you can be sure that your custom wedding rings are cast in a metal that will not harm or irritate your skin.

Enjoy this creative time... and leave a mark on your custom wedding rings that shouts "you", an individual!